About the Project

This project enlisted the help of UX and UI Designers who the collaborated to create a unique solution

Project Overview :

The CICO mobile app was developed as a comprehensive inventory management platform designed to streamline the workflows of distributors, salespeople, individual users, and marketing teams. With customized modules for each role, CICO aims to eliminate operational inefficiencies and offer a centralized solution to manage stock, plan routes, interact with customers, and gain marketing insights—all from a mobile device.

Project Goal :

- To design and develop a mobile-first platform that addresses the unique needs of four key user segments.
- To unify inventory management, sales tracking, route planning, and marketing intelligence under a single, intuitive interface.

- To provide real-time insights and simplified workflows that improve productivity and customer experience.

Problem Statement

Inventory management and operational coordination were fragmented across different user groups. Distributors, salespeople, individuals, and marketing teams struggled with outdated systems, manual tracking, and a lack of unified tools. This resulted in delays, data inconsistencies, limited collaboration, and missed opportunities for optimization and marketing.

Problem

Distributors :

Faced difficulty tracking real-time stock levels and managing orders effectively.

Salesperson :

Needed a robust system to handle routes, customer engagement, quotations, invoicing and sales forecasts while on the move.

Individuals :

Lacked tools for efficient construction planning, product browsing, and wallet-based ordering.

Marketing Teams :

Struggled to collect actionable insights, manage promotions, and align campaigns with customer demand and product performance.

VS

Solution

Distributors :

Intuitive dashboards for inventory tracking, real-time order updates, and performance analytics.

Salesperson :

Feature-rich mobile app with tools for managing distributors, routes, inventory, customer queries, quotations, and invoicing - all tailored for field operations.

Individuals :

Lightweight interface to browse distributors, manage inventory, & track wallet balances with construction planning features.

Marketing Teams :

Dashboards to analyze promotions, track product demand, review item requests, and manage approved inventory lists effectively.

User Flow - Salesperson

Salespeople can manage distributor lists, request and track stock, and view current inventory. They handle orders, plan daily routes through the route master and route plans, and manage quotations, forecasts, new site requirements, enquiries, complaints, and invoices including ledgers and ERP orders—all from a centralized dashboard.

Tech Stack

The CICO app was built using ReactJS for a dynamic web interface, Flutter for a seamless cross-platform mobile experience, .NET for secure and scalable backend development, and MySQL for efficient data storage and management. This stack ensured a robust, user-friendly, and high-performing application.

Market Impact

The CICO mobile app has significantly improved inventory and sales management operations for businesses. By providing tailored interfaces and tools for each user group, the app has reduced redundant workflows and improved cross-team collaboration. Sales representatives are now better equipped to serve customers on the field, while distributors gain real-time insights to optimize their inventory cycles.

Marketing teams benefit from integrated data analytics, enabling them to craft targeted campaigns and maximize return on promotions. Individuals and site managers also enjoy seamless planning tools that reduce operational hiccups. Overall, the CICO app enhances productivity, ensures smoother operations, and sets a benchmark for future-ready inventory management systems.
